NEW YORK JOURNAL AND ADVERTISER

W. R. HEARST. AN AMERICAN PAPER FOR THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

GOOD-BY, BAILEY.

Bailey is going to leave us. Bowed down and acquainted with grief because, as he delicately puts it, forty odd members of his party "decline to uphold the Constitution, as they have sworn to do," he refuses any longer to retain the Democratic leades hip in the House. "Refusing to uphold the Constitution," of course, means refusing to uphold Bailey. In his view, Bailey and the Constitution are synonymous terms.

In the gloomy recesses of his cavernous mind Bailey turns over the reminiscence of Tenniel's famous Bunch cartoon, "Dropping the Pilot? He sees himself as the Bismarck of Democracy stalking haughtily down the ship's side, and he wonders what the fate of the abandoned craft will be.

Well, the Democracy survived the loss of Thomas Jefferson; it outlived Andrew Jackson, and it will probably struggle along with a semblance of life and even of cheerfulness without Bailey.

Six weeks ago the Journal said:

General Joe Wheeler, the grizzled veteran of a hundred battles, on the field, on the hustings and in the halls of Congress, is being attacked by young Bailey, of Texas, the leader without a following, who is trying to stop the locomotive of progress by throwing himself under its wheels,

General Wheeler is still intact, the locomotive of progress is still moving, but Bailey has prudently rolled off the track into the ditch.

Away back in last June the Journal gave Mr. Bailey a little in-verely that the members of the committee formation which, had he profited by it, would have saved him much day, subsequent humiliation. "Democrats," it said, "like other citizens, While we are not ready to adopt the heroic I are Americans first and partisans afterward.

"They believe in their country, and are proud of it. They believe that, splendid as the cials and grasping corporations, the time has Republic's past has been, the future ought to be and will be still more splendid. * * * come when the people are determined to and may offer an important object lesson here. Sympathy with the spirit of progress is characteristic of the American people. They have sense, and know that a war necessarily creates new problems and imposes new duties. They have no use for a party that would close its eyes to the and Harbor bill have agreed amendment regretted that the speech contained nothing should be problems, shirk the new duties and insist that nothing should be changed. Bailey, the small-bore, represents that kind of cowardice and to appropriate a million dol- tion of land. stupidity."

Mr. Bailey is one of the youngest men in public life, but his cranial for the Nicaragua Canal. We their living quarters in order to be as near as possible to their work. OT for want of sagacious counsel will the Elmira excursionists find their visit to New York uninteresting or unprofitable. Their appeal to the Journal for guidance in the construction of a sight-seeing programme—an appeal politely passed on by the Journal to its good-natured readers—has elicited much sound advice from New Yorkers of the first consideration. The appeal from Elmira came in the form of a telegram, reading like this:

ditor Journal:
We have big up-country excursion to the city March 16. Will you please advise by wire leading attractions that will interest or instruct?
